DESCRIPTION

The tenancy status refers to the accommodation in which the respondent was living when they were around 14 years old. If the respondent's tenancy status changed during the reference period, the answer should be based on the accommodation in which the respondent spent most of their time during the period.

Owned: Accommodation is considered to be owned if (at least) one of the members of the household has a title deed to the accommodation. If, for instance, the accommodation was provided by a relative (such as by the respondent's grandparents) who was not a member of the household, then it should be recorded as either 'rented' or 'accommodation was provided free', depending on whether or not rent was paid by this household. Households that had an outstanding mortgage for the purchase of the accommodation or paid part rent and part mortgage for their accommodation should be classified as 'owners' if they possessed a title deed.

Rented: The tenant was a member of the household. It includes tenants or subtenants paying rent at the prevailing or market rate or at a reduced rate.

Accommodation was provided free: 'Accommodation was provided free' applies only when there was no rent to be paid, such as when the accommodation came with the job, or was provided rent-free. This includes cases where free rent is granted by law as a result of a social housing scheme, for private reasons or by an employer.
